DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is in response to communication filed on 4/27/2010.
2. Claims 1-33, 35, 38, 42 and 45 have been canceled. Claims 55-56 have been withdrawn.
3. Claims 34, 36-37, 39-41, 43-44, 46-48, 50-51 and 53-54 are presented for examination.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 34, 36-37, 39-41, 46-48, 50-51 and 53-54 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nakamura (5,987,424 hereinafter Nakamura) in view of Kenney (5,515,424 hereinafter Kenney).

With respect to claims 34,36-37, 39-41, 43-44, 46-48, 50-51, 53-54 Nakamura teaches a communication terminal (i.e. subscriber telephone set 1); a registration request issuing means for issuing a registration request for advertisement information broadcast from an advertisement information broadcast server and receiving means for receiving advertisement information which is broadcast from said advertisement information broadcast server, based on said registration request (i.e. the telephone set under contract to receive messages)(steps 1301 and 1302); and a display means for displaying said advertisement information received by said receiving means (Figure 14).

With respect to said display means for automatically displaying said advertisement information on a standby screen when the communication terminal is in standby state. Kenney teaches “the monitor 18 would display informational screens for a period of 8-10 seconds each when the phone is not in use. These still images are stored in a memory module 38, which could be a disk drive, in the phone. In some cases, the data could be downloaded from a central administration point” (col. 4, lines 27-32). It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of Applicant’s invention to have included automatically receiving advertisement information on a standby screen because such a modification would without any human interaction attract passerby to the telephone terminals.

With respect to the communication terminal being portable. Official Notice is taken that it is old and well known for devices or the like to be portable in order to provide portability. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of Applicant’s invention to have included the communication terminal being portable in order to obtain the above mentioned advantage.

Nakamura further teaches a registration cancellation means for requesting to stop broadcasting said advertisement information from said advertisement broadcast server (i.e. detecting subscriber termination/rejection of advertisements)(step 1303) and a registration cancellation means for requesting to stop broadcasting said advertisement information from said advertisement information broadcast server (i.e. exchange 4 determining if a cancellation request was received from the subscriber telephone set 1)((col. 24, lines 29-33).

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant states that Nakamura suggests that the subscriber telephone set 1 may perform a dialing operation for temporarily stopping the advertisement broadcast service that is on monthly contact basis but according to Applicant any combination of Nakamura with Kenney can bring about more than that the advertisement broadcast service provided under a monthly contract on the standby screen of the subscriber telephone set is stopped temporarily within the valid period of the contract. The Examiner wants to point out that Nakamura teaches the subscribing telephone set 1 subscribing to a service contract of when to begin and end/determining/canceling the broadcasting of the advertisements to telephone set 1. This service as oppose to Applicant's arguments is provided to the user when the user needs the services because the subscriber subscribes to the month, that he wants the advertisements to be provided to the telephone set 1. For instance, the user subscribe to a particular month of the subscription. Kenney teaches providing the information on a standby mode when the phone is not in use. The teachings of Nakamura and Kenney teaches, the terminal user receiving advertisements as per registration request example, the month of February and Kenney displaying the advertisements during standby state. Nakamura teaches displaying the advertisements during the month of February (Nakamura) anytime during the month of February and Kenney teaches displaying the phone when on standby mode/state (Kenney) during the contracted month of February. The combination of Nakamura and Kenney teaches registering the telephone set 1 during a particular month, Year. Etc as taught by Nakamura and providing/transmitting the advertisements during standby state during the contracted month in order to attract passerby to watch or listen to the advertisements during the standby state during the contracted month in order to better attract listeners and viewers to the advertisements.

Art Unit: 3688

7. In response to applicant's argument that in the present invention, the terminal user is allowed to receive the broadcast service only for a time interval desired by the user to thereby enjoy a reduction in wasteful expenditure of communication charges under contract, the fact that applicant has recognized another advantage which would flow naturally from following the suggestion of the prior art cannot be the basis for patentability when the differences would otherwise be obvious. See Ex parte Obiaya, 227 USPQ 58, 60 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1985).

8. In addition, the advertisements are stopped in Nakamura when requested by the user terminal. The claims do not call for the advertisements being stopped on a permanent basis. The claims only call for stopping of the broadcast by said registration cancellation means. The claims do not call for the cancellation being permanent or not. Even if cancellation being on permanent were to be claimed, it is old and well known for subscriber to cancel subscription of a product or service and it would have been obvious to have combined the references of record to allow the subscriber to cancel the registration request when the advertisements are no longer needed.

Conclusion

9. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
